Section II Translation (60 %. 30% for each question)

Direction: Translating the following paragraphs into Chinese.

1. Kroeber also had a long-term interest in the nature of culture and the way culture formed recognizable and persistent patterns. He associated this idea with the superorganic. It is interesting to note that Kroeber showed the importance of the superorganic, as well as of pattern, by investigating changes in women's fashions. He found that women's fashions, rather than merely showing personal choice, show cultural patterns.
2. The societies of pastoralists and agriculturalists in the early stages of these technological developments are likewise relatively simple, undifferentiated systems. As a matter of fact we may characterize all human social systems up to a certain point in the development of the agricultural, or farming-and-animal-husbandry, technology as primitive society: tribes based upon kinship ties, free access to the resources of nature for all, relatively little social differentiation and specialization, and a high degree of social equality.
